PURPOSES, GOALS AND FUNCTIONS

The Council of Organizations Serving the Deaf represents the culmination of a 10-year dream — the formation of a central clearing house and contact point for information and combined action by national organizations serving deaf persons. Following a year-long study by the National Health Council under a grant from the Social and Rehabilitation Service of the United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the COSD was officially incorporated on January 27, 1967 under the laws of New York State.

The basic objectives of the Council are spelled out in its Articles of Incorporation — to promote the best interests of deaf persons through the cooperative efforts of its autonomous organizations, by

- a) Striving to eliminate social and economic barriers which handicap deaf persons.
- b) Supporting activity directed to the prevention of deafness.
- c) Coordinating and strengthening the services of its member organizations.
- d) Providing liaison between organizations for the deaf and other organizations interested in the deaf and their problems.
- e) Facilitating the sharing of information about deafness and the welfare of the deaf, and providing general information about deafness.
- f) Enlisting the support of organizations and of the general public in developing economic, social, cultural, and other opportunities for deaf persons.
- g) Seeking funds for the accomplishment of these purposes.

Inter-organization communication is maintained through newsletters, memoranda, and board letters, which report national and international developments relating to deafness, including activities in Congress, the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, schools and colleges, rehabilitation centers, and other areas which relate to the study and solution of the problems of the deaf.

From time to time, as the COSD Board directs, special sections will be activated to study and seek remedies for various problems in the field of deafness. Topics which are presently being considered under the context of section study include:

- Insurance problems of the deaf
- Legal rights of the deaf (counsel and interpreter)
- Adult education programs for the deaf

PURPOSES, GOALS AND FUNCTIONS

The Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf, Inc., established in 1890 to promote the teaching of speech and lipreading to the deaf, serves individuals, schools, welfare agencies, and other groups interested in problems created by hearing loss.

Its main objective is to promote the teaching of speech, lipreading, and the use of residual hearing to those whose hearing is impaired. The Association aids schools by encouraging them in their efforts to teach speech and lipreading, and in finding ways to overcome the difficulties encountered in teaching speech to pupils. The Association urges the maximum use of residual hearing by both adults and children with impaired hearing. It employs agents to collect for publication, statistics and papers on speech and lipreading, and acts as a clearing house to disseminate information concerning methods of teaching speech and lipreading, and concerning the education and general welfare of the deaf.

At the Association's biennial Summer and Regional meetings, professionals, parents, oral deaf adults and other interested persons are given opportunity to exchange ideas, and to learn about the latest developments and techniques in the education of the deaf.

MEMBERSHIP

As of October 1967, membership in the Association numbered approximately 7,000.

The Canadian Association of the Deaf
210-200 Gateway Blvd.,
Don Mills, Ontario

PURPOSES, GOALS AND FUNCTIONS

The Canadian Association of the Deaf acts to coordinate the efforts of the regional associations of the deaf in Canada in matters which affect the deaf both locally and nationally. Action is taken at the request of an affiliated group except during the annual meeting when action may be approved on the reports of individual directors.

The goals of the CAD are similar to those of the National Association of the Deaf but the organization for their accomplishment is somewhat different. The CAD is composed of 25 Directors, five of them representing regional organizations of Western Canada, Ontario, Montreal, Eastern Canada and the Canadian Club. There are no Directors-at-Large. Seven Directors from the Toronto area make up an Executive Board; the rest, nominated by deaf leaders or organizations in their respective provinces, are distributed from coast to coast.

A sixth affiliate is the Canadian Deaf Information Center, which serves as a central clearing house, and handles the information and public relations functions for the CAD. The CDIC is compiling and cataloging a most comprehensive collection of current books, periodicals, pamphlets and clippings on deafness and the deaf. This collection is maintained in the form of a reference library open to the public.

MEMBERSHIP

By agreement with its affiliates the CAD does not accept individual members. Members of dues-paying affiliate groups are considered to be members of the CAD. Total membership of the CAD affiliates is approximately 1,500.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Annual organizational meeting.

PUBLICATIONS

Official CAD announcements are published in the official organs of the affiliates, in a President's Newsletter, and in the Annual Proceedings.

National Association of the Deaf
2025 Eye Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C. 20006

PURPOSES, GOALS AND FUNCTIONS

The National Association of the Deaf is the only national organization run solely by and for the deaf. It is under the control of the State Associations of the Deaf through their elected representatives, and its whole attention is directed toward insuring that the rights and privileges of citizenship are maintained for the deaf.

Some of its continuing projects include research on the deaf, studies of social problems arising out of deafness, problems of automation and retraining, and means for assistance and cooperation with all interested agencies, both private and public. The NAD seeks to provide parents, employers and others with realistic truths about deafness by people, who, themselves, have lived with it.

The NAD cooperates not only with State Associations, but with the World Federation of the Deaf — a world-wide organization which has earned advisory status in UNESCO. The NAD serves as a clearing house, provides pamphlets, articles, and other information about the deaf, and will answer all inquiries concerning problems arising out of deafness.

MEMBERSHIP

The National Association of the Deaf has approximately 14,000 members.

PURPOSES, GOALS AND FUNCTIONS

The National Fraternal Society of the Deaf is an insurance and sickness and accident benefit organization, of, by, and for the deaf, and is operated on the lodge system. Six popular forms of life insurance are offered by the Society with no maximum limit.

Although the Society is primarily engaged in life insurance, that is by no means its sole purpose, and its interest in the welfare of the deaf is not confined only to its members. The NFSD frequently uses its influence to support whatever ideal it deems to have important aspects which concern the deaf. Its goal is to see that the great majority of the deaf fully develop their capabilities, secure gainful employment, and lead independent lives.

MEMBERSHIP

The NFSD has approximately 10,600 members.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Conventions are held quadriennially.

The 1971 Convention is scheduled to be held July 18-24 at the Sherman House, Chicago, Illinois.

PUBLICATIONS

The official publication of the NFSD is a bi-monthly magazine, "The Frat". Booklets are, also, published on topics of concern to the deaf. Two examples are: "You and Your Car" (donated by the Society to schools for the deaf to be used in Driver Training Courses), and "Protect Your Life" (distributed to all women who attended the July 1967 convention in New York City).
